

PLEASE do not allow changes in the No Call list! Banks and phone companies will drive us crazy. Just this week my Caller ID indicated that the flashing light on my answering machine (but no message!) came from MBNA America with whom I have a credit card account. They had called every day this week, and twice today. Concerned that there was a problem related to my account, I returned the call, only to find they were soliciting for a "special offer" of a credit card protection plan! They are violating the No Call rule already! And persistently! Life has been blessed without all those awful calls - the charities are bad enough. The telephone service I pay for is for ME, not for the telemarketers of the world!
